

ABSTRACT

An enclosure for use during inspection of a vehicle is provided. The enclosure is attached to the vehicle by a securing member and helps to control the environment, such as reducing the light or decreasing any air movement during inspection. The enclosure provides a control environment during the inspection of the vehicle to ensure accurate testing.